To meet this growth new schools and additions expected to be open next week provide only 15,199 new alttings. This means that the 103,785 pupils reported on part time last May will continue so, and that 24,801 will be added to their ranks Monday, a total of 128,586. Gif the full estimated attendance throughout the city two children out of every fifteen will be on part time.

Part time and double sessions have increased rapidly and consistently during the Hylan Administration, despite the "seat for every pupil" pledge. When Mayor Hylan took of fice there were 46,402 children on, part time. With the 15,199 expected to be ready Monday, the four-years' record of the Administration will be 19,200 new seats, of which last year's quota totalled 80. This leaves a net deficlency in sittings for the Hylan Administration at an estimated $2,154, an average of 21,000 additional parttime pupils for every one of the four spirit of hope The Evening World investigator revisited Friday and Saturday the schools he inspected last June. To be sure, the spirit was higher than the hope, for he remembered that the Board of Estimate had keen appropriating only about 18 per cent. of the amount needed for repairs ever a period of years. He recalled, further, that Harry M. Devoc, Deputy sporintendent in charge of Manhattas School Buildings, estimated, in 1918, it would require $7,000,000 to put the schools of that borough alone in good repair. His appropriations have us only into the bundreds of thou-

SAME NEGLECT. Brooklyn shows a record similar to the other boroughs. The schools reported on were among those most in need of repair. The New Utrecht High School, 86th Street and 18th Avenue, Bath Beach, was found in June to be in a perilous condition, both structurally and as a fire hazard. The stairs were rickety, the sanitation bad, the timbers and girders were rotting, the toilets were odorous and insanitary. In short, nothing was right.

and insanitary. In short, nothing was right.

The only repairs made during the summer on this school, over which there has been agitation for years, consisted of the installation of new leader pipes. Not a daub of paint in the entire building, although it has been so long since a brush has been applied it is impossible to tell the original color.

Public School No. 102, 71st Street and Second Avenue, fared somewhat better. The boys have a new modern toilet instead of their old badsmelling one. But the wooden stairs are still worn deep and constitute an ever-present danger for the children, the walls are chipping worse than in June, and the dingy gaslights still afford the illumination. The shangles are off in many places of the walls and roof of the old building. New boilers have been installed in the new building.

At Public School No. 166, off the Brooklyn end of the Williamsburg Bridge Plaza, hope of a new building is the only consolation for the pupils and teachers who will occupy the derelict old structure next week. The culty require to the school which is classes will be larger and the opening of the new schools alone will require an additional 506 teachers, the Board at its final executive session cut by one-third the amount the Budget Committee had asked for the employment of new teachers. Under the direction of Superintendent Ettinger provision had been made for 1,000 new teachers.

An old building, dangerous attracture in every way. The foregoing resume is the answer. Some improved in equipment, but they will be larger and the opening dangerous attracture next week. The only repairs to the school, which is probably the worst firetrap in the city and in the worst physical condition, consist of fixing the decrapit desks, although the cane chairs are still without bottoms—and some volunteer painting done by the janitor. Last year the deal to purchase the Long Island Business College Building for this school fell through, although the project was in the building programme.

After months of investigation The World reveals every detail of the Klan's fight against Jews, Catholics, Negroes and Foreign Born.

THE WHOLE TRUTH About it From the Inside.

In five years the Ku Klux Klan has grown from thirty-four charter members to a strength of more than 500,000. Under the acceleration of a highly organized sales force it is spreading through the North and West more than twice as rapidly as it is in the South. Millions of dollars are going to these salesmen in commissions, and millions more are Postam and Postam flowing into the "Imperial" Treasury through the sale of regalia at more than four times the cost of manufacture.
